BUSINESS OUTLOOK SURVEY-SECOND QUARTER OF 2022

Results of the second-quarter 2022 survey |
Vol. 19.2 | July 4, 2022

Results from the Business Outlook Survey for the second quarter of 2022, along with those from the April, May and June 2022 Business Leaders' Pulse surveys, suggest that capacity pressures remain elevated and expectations of significant price increases continue to be widespread. Firms anticipate that sales growth will begin to moderate from exceptionally high rates as signs of greater uncertainty emerge. From a consumer standpoint, inflation tends to make things more expensive. This ultimately impacts the sales as volumes of items purchased drop. The other option is that a company doesn't increase their prices, in which case their margins take a hit.

- Many businesses continue to expect strong sales growth, but an increasing number of these firms expect the pace of growth to return to normal following a fast recovery from the pandemic. Some firms also anticipate that labour shortages will limit growth in their sales.
 - The number of businesses reporting labour-related constraints and supply chain bottlenecks remains at a record high, suggesting that supply is not keeping up with demand. About half of firms with supply chain challenges expect them to persist until the end of 2023 or beyond.
 - As in recent surveys, many businesses anticipate significant wage and price increases.
- Pressures on input and output prices continue to be linked to supply chain issues.
- Businesses' expectations for near-term inflation have increased, and firms expect inflation to be high for longer than they did in the previous survey. Still, most see inflation returning to 2% over time. They noted various factors needed for inflation to return to target, including higher interest rates, improved supply chains, lower oil prices and a resolution of the war in Ukraine.

Questions and Answers

Is Canada headed to a recession in 2023?

With Soaring inflation, rising interest rates, a pandemic and a war in Ukraine pretty soon we could be adding a recession to our list of troubles.

A majority of economists surveyed by Finder say Canada is headed for a recession, and we can expect it to hit anywhere between 2023 and the first part of 2024.

It will be short-lived and not as severe as prior downturns, according to a new report from RBC. Canada will also see unemployment drift slowly higher and then slightly faster into next year. RBC said it expects the unemployment rate to reach 6.6 per cent in 2023, but doesn't think it will take long to reverse some of that weakness in 2024 and beyond.

Chamber of Commerce

Why you should become a member!!

We work on your behalf to lobby government and official departments to address your concerns.

Chambers of Commerce take on the tough issues and may oppose new regulations, taxes, assessments and costs that will negatively impact small businesses. While you may not personally have the time to get involved, the Chamber will use its resources for the betterment of small business owners.

Newsletters provide new member information, interesting information about operating a local business, articles about the local business community, and details about up-and-coming chamber events.

The chamber initiates numerous monthly business-to-business opportunities for networking and connecting with other local business professionals. You also can grow your business by advertising with the chamber and sponsoring events.
